

WELCOME COMPANY M

CONGRESS STARTS ON LONG GRIND

EXTRAORDINARY SESSION IS CONFRONTED WITH MANY PROBLEMS.
BOTH BODIES
WILL ORGANIZE
Republicans For First Time
Since 1911. Have Majorities in Both Houses.

BULLETIN. May 19.—Representative Gillett was elected speaker of the house and Senator Cummings was elected president pro tempore of the senate. The two bodies both met to hear President Wilson's message called from Paris.

Washington, May 19.—When the name of Victor Berger of Wisconsin was called in the house today as new members were sworn, Representative Gillett of Massachusetts, republican chairman of the elections committee, according to pre-arranged plans, formally challenged his right to be seated. Berger is appealing from a war time conviction of the espionage law.

Speaker Gillett directed Berger to stand aside when he appeared with his state delegation for oath and refused to recognize him when he tried to speak as a matter of personal privilege.

Washington, May 19.—The "reconstruction" congress, assembling in extraordinary session today marks the return to power of the republicans and the loss by the democrats of control over the national legislative body. Organization of both senate and house by the new majority was today's principal business.

The immediate work before the congress, the 66th of the American republic, is passage before July 1 of a regular annual appropriation bill which called in the senate last March. After that will come consideration of the peace treaty and covenant of the league of nations, and railroad, shipping, revenue, and navy and other legislation. Many investigations, particularly into war activities, also are expected.

The republicans today for the first time since 1911 have majorities in both branches of congress as a result of the congressional elections last November. In the house they have a margin of two score votes but in the senate they have only a one vote majority.

It has happened before.

With President Wilson, a democrat, the change presented a situation similar to that during the last two years of President Taft's administration when he was a democratic house, and to President Cleveland's when he was a republican congress.

The senate has 49 republicans and 47 democrats. The new house roll lists 233 republicans, 139 democrats, two independents, one prohibitionist, one socialist and four vacancies (all in democratic districts), a total of 436. The house division gives the republicans a majority of 19 over the democrats and 39 over all combined opposition.

Republican action promises, however, to be restrained by President Wilson's veto power, as Mr. Wilson expects cooperation between administration officials and the republicans is expected on uncontested matters.

Assembly of the new congress was marked by the establishment of more precedents. It was the first time that congress had convened with a president in Europe and his opening message called from foreign soil.

Message Expected Tomorrow.

The message was not to be sent to congress until tomorrow, however. It probably will make no reference to the peace treaty, as Mr. Wilson expects to appear personally to present the treaty next month.

The session beginning today was expected to run virtually to the time for the regular December session, which will precede the 1920 national and presidential campaign.

Important house committees were to be chosen today but the senate republicans were not ready with their committee assignments. Because of the progressive fight against the election of Senators Penrose of Pennsylvania and Warren of Wyoming, as chairmen of the finance and appropriation committees respectively.

Senate leaders arranged today to adjourn until Thursday, to give time for the republicans to work on committees. Little business is planned in the senate until these are arranged.

The avalanche of new bills and resolutions introduced today in the house, but introduction of senate measures went over.

Treaty Promises Agitation.

Final action by the senate on the league of nations before July 1 is not generally expected, although much discussion meanwhile is planned. Senate ratification of the proposed alliance with Great Britain and France or protection of France from attack by Germany promises widespread agitation.

SAYS AMERICANISM KNOWS NO GROUPS

Philander P. Claxton.

"Not groups of any kind, but free men, women and children, make up the people of the United States," says Dr. P. P. Claxton, U. S. commissioner of education, in a letter on the work for the education of American foreign-born. "The spirit of Americanization is the spirit of freedom and recognition of manhood as above all groups."

EBERT CALLS PEACE TERMS IMPOSSIBLE

GERMAN PRESIDENT TELLS CROWD THEY WILL NOT BE SIGNED.

CALLS PEACE
ENSLAVEMENT

Rumania and Russia In State Of War Because Of Soviet Ultimatum.

Berlin, Sunday, May 18.—President Ebert in addressing a demonstration here today said that Germany would never sign the peace terms.

The demonstration was held in the Lustgarten and was attended by a great crowd. President Ebert described the peace terms as "the product of the enemy's revengeful hysteria" and added:

"Foreign countries will not permit the prosecution of Germany. They will raise their voices with us that this peace of enslavement which we will never sign shall not come to pass."

Austrians Give Credentials.

St. Germain-or-Laye, May 19.—The exchange of credentials between representatives of the allied and associated powers and the Austrian peace delegates took place at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. The session lasted four minutes.

Paris, May 19.—The impression prevailed in peace conference circles here today that the peace treaty with Austria would not be presented during the current week. The drafting of the document is taking longer than was anticipated.

Rantauz Back on Job.

Versailles, May 19.—Count Von Brockdorff-Rantauz, head of the German peace mission who left for Spa on Saturday night, returned to Versailles this morning. He was accompanied by Herr Lansberg and Herr Giesberts, two other members of the delegation who had been to Berlin.

The plenipotentiaries were General Van Secht, military expert, and about forty other persons.

Paris, May 19.—Count Von Brockdorff-Rantauz, head of the German peace mission who left this city for Spa on Saturday night will return to Versailles at noon today, according to Havas report.

Rumania Is At War.

London, Sunday, May 18.—Owing to Rumania's disregard of the ultimatum from the Russian soviet government demanding an evacuation of Bessarabia, a state of war exists between Russia and Rumania, according to a wireless dispatch from Moscow.

Bolshevik troops have crossed the Dniester river in the Tiraspol district where they have defeated the Rumanian and occupied Tchernouchi and Bender, the dispatch says.

Huns Denounce Allies.

Paris, Sunday, May 18.—Describing recent demonstrations before the Adlon hotel in Berlin, a dispatch to the Temps from the German capital says, the crowd shouted:

"Down with France, England, America, Clemenceau, Poch and Wilson."

It says that the shouts against Wilson seemed to indicate that he is particularly reviled by the German population, public opinion, "not pardoning him for interpreting the 14 points at variance with the German interpretation of them."

HOPE HELD FOR CREW OF SEAPLANE

NAVY DEPARTMENT HAS NOT RECEIVED OFFICIAL
NEWS OF RESCUE.

FLEET OF VESSELS
SCOUR ATLANTIC

Heavy Seas and Gales of Last 48
Hours Cause Great Anxiety.

BULLETIN.

Washington, May 19.—The lost naval seaplane N. C.-3, commanded by Commander J. H. Towers, lost in mid-Atlantic since 5:15 Sunday morning, was today reported to the navy department proceeding toward Ponta Delgada under her own power seven miles from land.

This message was received at the navy department early this afternoon from Rear Admiral Jackson at Ponta Delgada.

The N. C.-3, located seven miles north of Ponta Delgada under her own power.

Horta, May 19.—The N. C.-4 was tuning up this afternoon preparatory for its flight to Ponta Delgada.

London, May 19.—Harry G. Hawker in his airplane has been sighted off Ireland, according to unofficial reports received by the American navy here.

London, May 19, 10:26 a. m.—American naval authorities here have received an unofficial report that the crew of the N. C.-3 has been rescued since by the American warship Columbia.

London, May 19.—The manager of the Sopwith Airplane company, received a report at 5 o'clock this afternoon that the seaplane was 1305 miles off Ireland at 4 p. m. today.

The air ministry announced shortly after five o'clock that it had no confirmation of the report that Hawker had been off Ireland at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

New York, May 19.—Naval officials here refused today to give up hope that the N. C.-3 "magnificent" of the Trans-Atlantic flight, had not been heard from Saturday in mid-ocean, would be located and the crew rescued. While lack of a surface wireless set, which was abandoned at Trepassy Bay, led to the seaplane's being lost, the craft from signalling its position, the navy men were confident the buoyancy of the empty gas tanks would keep the plane afloat even in heavy seas, and the searching warships came to the rescue.

Horta, May 19.—The crew of the N. C.-1 was picked up by the steamer Ionia, Saturday afternoon, after they had been found alive on the wrecked surface of their damaged plane. All the members were fatigued and suffering from seasickness when picked up. The plane is almost a total wreck.

Rescue Not Reported.

Washington, May 19.—Although it was said it was possible London might get the news first, the navy department early today has not been notified of the unofficially reported rescue of the crew of the seaplane, N. C.-3, as told in a news dispatch from London this morning. It was stated, however, that interrupted cable news from the azores and the United States might account for a report of the rescue reaching American naval offices in London before it was received here.

Since early Saturday morning, when Commander Towers reported the plane then was off her course about 300 miles from her destination, had been missing for more than 48 hours, and owing to bad weather and sea conditions that would have made it very difficult for the plane to live on the ocean's surface even if it had effected a successful landing, which is not doubted here, uneasiness of naval officers for the safety of the mammoth flying boat and the five members of its crew had increased over night.

Vessels Keep Up Search.

The more than a score naval vessels which have been sweeping the sea since a short time after the N. C.-3 became lost, kept up their search throughout the night. High seas and foggy weather around the azores have handicapped the patrol work and also have increased the doubt as to the ability of craft to remain alive on the surface of the sea. The N. C.-1 by the wind and waves was pointed to show the difficulties the fliers faced. Hope of the ultimate rescue of Commander Towers and his crew has not been abandoned however, and increased efforts to find them were begun today.

In the meantime the N. C.-4, the only one of the three planes that left the first leg of the overseas trip, to complete the voyage, was weather-bound at Horta-but was expected to resume her flight to Lisbon, Portugal, for the second lap of the flight today. The machine itself was reported to be in excellent condition to resume the journey and the confidence of its crew has not been shaken by the misfortunes of their fellow fliers.

Instructions to use the seaplane N. C.-4 at Horta to search for the missing seaplane N. C.-3 and her crew have been sent Rear Admiral Jackson at Ponta Delgada by Rear Admiral

WAR RISK BUREAU GOES UNDER CHANGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, May 19.—The war risk insurance bureau through which 4,000,000 soldiers or their dependents receive payments of insurance, allotments or compensation was in process of sudden re-organization today through the appointment of R. A. Chalmers Jones, formerly a New York business man, now a colonel in the bureau's section in France, as director to succeed Col. Henry D. Lindsley who resigned yesterday in a clash with Secretary Glass in which he charged the treasury department with placing restraints on the organization which were making it a "colossal failure."

Secretary Glass in a public statement has made a vigorous reply to Colonel Lindsley's charges and the charges are said to forecast a thorough shake-up of the big bureau which bears a closer home relation to the soldiers than any other agency of the government.

Clouds of charges have been hovering over the bureau for months and a congressional investigation is expected.

10,000 BOLSHEVIST TROOPS CAPTURED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, May 19.—General Penikese who is personally conducting the operations of his anti-Bolshevik army against the city of Tzaritsin on the Volga, announces the capture of 10,000 prisoners and 26 guns from the bolsheviks. This news was telegraphed by the chief of the British military mission at Ekaterinodar.

Sheriff Mistakes Plaster of Paris for Skull

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Akron, O., May 19.—Sheriff Pat Hutchinson is known far and wide as a wide-awake officer and always on the job, but Pat sometimes makes a mistake.

Someone called Pat in an excited voice and told of finding a skull where a house was being prepared. Pat rushed to the scene and sure enough there was the skull. Pat took it on the run to the office of the prosecuting attorney and after gravely investigating the skull he said to the sheriff:

"Pat, you are in this home and use it for a tobacco jar."

"Pat gasped. 'But what about the finding of this?'"

"Oh, never mind, Pat," said the prosecutor. "Let's not say any more about it."

Pat had heard of "plaster of paris" but had never heard of "plaster of paris."

Two Are Drowned When Naval Seaplane Falls

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chatham, Mass., May 19.—Lieut. Austin and Machinist Hendricksen were drowned when a naval seaplane fell into the sea off here today. Ensign Everett P. Welch was rescued.

339th to Be Taken From Northern Russia

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Archangel Sunday, May 18.—Arrangements are under way to begin the transportation to England of the 339th American Infantry within ten days time.

Plunkett commanding the destroyer Force, according to a message received today at navy department. All destroyer force today is being taken over by the 339th American Infantry. The 339th has been placed at Admiral Jackson's disposal to search for the missing plane.

May Hold N. C.-3.

Admiral Plunkett's action if naval officers at Horta decide his suggestion is practicable may postpone continuation of the trans-Atlantic flight by the N. C.-4 until definite information as to the N. C.-3 has been obtained or she is given up as lost.

An official report to the department today from Trepassy Bay said Commander Towers had discarded the radio telephone installation of the N. C.-3 before the big Newfoundland seaplane was launched. The plane retained, however, the long distance radio set and should have been able to communicate the fact that she was landing and probably to continue receiving messages from the limited distance after she was on the surface.

Secretary Daniels expressed confidence today that Commander Towers and his ship would be found, but many naval officers made no effort to conceal their anxiety for the safety of the flight commander and the four men with him.

Horta, Azores, May 18.—Rear Admiral Plunkett has sent word here suggesting that the seaplane N. C.-4 join in the search this morning for the missing N. C.-3. This suggestion is believed here, however, to be impracticable because the searching seaplane would be forced back by heavy head winds.

On destroyers and the battleships Florida and Texas were scouring the seas this forenoon for the N. C.-3 which was last heard from 162 miles northwest of Corvo at 8:14 a. m. Saturday.

The N. C.-3, which was picked up by a passing craft or their plane landed near one of the adjacent islands and is unable to communicate, the safety of Commander Towers and his crew is feared for by naval men here because the heavy seas and gales of the last 48 hours, it is thought, would have badly damaged, and possibly totally wrecked the plane. All available war craft have been ordered to join in the search.

The N. C.-4 which arrived at Horta in perfect condition Saturday expects to start for Ponta Delgada during this forenoon but as she has fuel enough on board for the flight to Lisbon she may fly directly for that port.

The N. C.-4, which is loved here badly damaged, will be dismantled and shipped to the United States on the cruiser Columbia. The crew of the N. C.-1 are all safe on the Columbia.

He preferred homegrown tobacco and was adept at cutting off the exact amount to make a pipeful.

Muchado About O.
A little book with the title of "The Vest Pocket Argument Settler" has been observed at a book store. Now who in the world ever had such an argument about a vest pocket as to try to write a book about it? Maybe the book wasn't about vest pockets, after all.

SUNDAY MEETINGS

Attendance at the Sunday afternoon men's meetings held at the M. E. A. during the past winter was 553, or an average of 51 for each meeting, according to figures given out by Charles E. Noyes, acting "Y" secretary.

Officials feel satisfied with the year's record and plan to make next year's meetings more interesting so as to secure an even larger attendance.

METHODISTS START CENTENARY FUND DRIVE THIS WEEK

An intensive campaign is being conducted this week by members of the Cargill Methodist church to raise funds to carry out the large program of work outlined by the centenary movement of the Methodist denomination. Forty men, divided in teams of two, made a house to house canvass yesterday so that the territory of church membership was pretty well covered. The astonishingly large amount of pledges and cash totaling $4,087.22 as yearly offerings for the period of five years, was turned in as the result of the campaign. The members of the teams voted unanimously to continue the work today until the quota assigned to the local church, which was $5,683, had been secured. No country members were seen yesterday, and many of the city members were away from home, so that it seems quite certain that the required amount would be secured before tonight. The members of the executive board in charge of the local movement were George A. Jacobs, Charles E. Moore, J. P. Lane, F. T. Richards and E. G. Owen.

Dinner is served
A dinner was served to the 40 men composing the teams of workers yesterday after the hour of morning worship, by the ladies of the church, in the church dining room. While it was being served plans were being outlined for the work of the teams, and a short talk was given them by Edward H. Poole who is the national field worker in charge of this movement. Poole, who has been in the field for some time, is a native of the far east and was given by Mr. Poole who from long experience had come to know them very well. He had lived in various centers in the Orient, and for five years in Manila. He gave a plain, business like statement of prevailing conditions in those countries, and of their needs.

Pays Tribute to U. S.
He paid a strong tribute to the administration of the U. S. in the Philippines, saying that splendid roads, good educational facilities, and entire freedom in religious matters was given the people since the islands had been taken over by this government. The speaker mentioned one of the Methodist churches located at Manila, which was unique in this work of development of the islands, as it was done without expecting any returns on their investment. For this reason the other heathen countries were looking with favor on Americans, as being the people in their plans. And even the soldiers who went into the interior of the islands at the time of their occupation by the U. S. tried to help the natives by teaching their children the English language.

A church at Singapore was mentioned where services begin at 8 o'clock in the morning and are conducted in various languages at hourly services during the entire day. In the peninsula of Malaya, he said, and they are red hot Americans and will prepare those countries for democracy and for Christianity.

The danger as he felt it in these countries of the far east, was in their securing an education without the restraining influence of Christianity. The appeal put forth by the bolshevik element which was made to the lowest passions of human nature must be met, he felt, by those of Christianity which showed the brotherhood of man. He felt that the people of America at this time to lend every effort to give these advantages along with the commercial responsibilities offered to give them also the opportunity to know the gospel of Jesus Christ.

MRS. LINNIE CARLE TALKS AT HIGH SCHOOL

Mrs. Linnie Carle, Portland, Ore., spoke to the high school students this morning. Mrs. Carle is field secretary of the Young People's branch of the W. C. T. U. and is at present touring the country in the interests of that organization.

Mrs. Carle told of the evils of the liquor traffic and explained that alcohol had been proven by scientists to be nothing more than a deadly poison.

"It is the plan of the W. C. T. U. to abolish the liquor traffic throughout the whole world by 1925," said Mrs. Carle, "and the help of you young people is sorely needed."

Mrs. Carle also gave a reading of James W. Kelly, which was exceedingly humorous and well given. Mrs. Carle will speak at the Methodist church this evening.

Federated Church Hears W. C. T. U. Speaker

In addition to the musical program which had been planned for the service at the Federated church last evening, Mrs. Linnie Carle, the field secretary of the W. C. T. U., gave an informal talk along the line of work accomplished by that organization, and made a plea for the support of Christianity and its twin sister, prohibition. She paid a special tribute to Frances E. Willard, who had done so much for the cause in this world. She gave a brief resume of different phases of the work done by the W. C. T. U., especially that of education in the schools along the line of scientific education in regard to harmful effects of alcohol. The work of Americanization which is to be done among foreigners in the large cities was also mentioned, and the fact that they were doing much in welfare work among the sailors and men of the merchant marine. She also gave two readings which were rendered with most sympathetic expression. They were, "The House by the Side of the Road," by Voss, and that negro poem of Lawrence Dunbar, "When Melindy Sings."

Two delightful musical numbers were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Eber Arthur as violin and cello duets. They were "The Lark," by Glinski, and a minuet by Schubert.

HOW ONCE PROUD PRUSSIAN OFFICERS ARE EARNING LIVING IN GERMANY NOW

Ex-Prussian officers carrying propaganda posters for Ebert government.

Four years ago every Prussian army officer had dreams of winning and dining in Paris while the allied people paid homage to him. But the receiving of the peace treaty by the German delegates finds these proud officers, in dazing uniforms, doing odd jobs at home to earn a living. In the photo two ex-officers are carrying posters for the Ebert government. These posters say, "Mother, think of me. Vote the Social Democrat ticket." On them is the picture of a child. The poster in the center says, "Social Democrats to the red urn (the ballot box)."

LANGE HANDS OUT STIFF TERMS TO FOUR

A down-hearted quartette faced the stern eye of Judge Lange in municipal court this morning. Judge Lange was on the bench in the absence of Judge Maxfield who went to Rockford to help in bringing the Company M men back to the city.

They left the court room looking more sorrowful than they did when they came in—Judge Lange showed no leniency. Fines of $25 or a choice of 60 days seemed to be the rule this morning.

Marlin Heesman and James Hampton, two local men, pleaded guilty to being intoxicated Sunday morning and were given $25 or 60. The same punishment was handed John Lange, on the bench from Evansville, while William Schultz, Evansville, fared better on his statement that it was the first time he had ever been in court.

"Ten dollars and costs of 30 days," said Judge Lange.

Fred Jacobson, Beloit, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of vagrancy. His examination was set for Saturday morning. Bail was fixed at $50. He said he was employed in Beloit and came here Saturday to see his landlord about some plumbing work.

Relatively, MILK, pure cow's MILK, the milk that we sell to the families of Janesville, is about the CHEAPEST one article of food that it is now possible to buy.

DEMETRAL WRESTLES TURK TOMORROW NIGHT

Young Demetral will be seen in action at the Myers theatre again tonrow night when he will take on Young Hussane, the terrible Turk, Detroit, in a finish wrestling match. A side bet of $100 will add an unusual amount of interest to the bout. The match will be two out of three falls to a finish.
A preliminary match between Young Sheard and Joe Anderson is on the card. Sheard has performed here before and has shown some real form.
Anderson is a comparative stranger to local fans but he is reputed to be a clever boy. An exhibition two-round boxing match is also part of the semi-windup.
The program will start at 8:30.

EDGERTON LOSES TO ROCKFORD MAROONS

Edgerton, May 19.—The Maroons of Rockford outclassed the local team in nine innings of baseball at the Driving park yesterday afternoon to the tune of 5 to 1. Loose fielding and inability to hit when hits meant runs contributed largely to the downfall of the locals. Practically all the scoring was done in two innings, and aside from these frames the game was interesting.
About 225 fans turned out to witness the fray, but in spite of this the receipts looked about $15 to defray the expenses of the day, which were greater than they will be at most of the games.
Next Sunday the Highway will journey to Jamesville to cross bats with the Lawrence Lunch team, and undoubtedly there will be a change in

A MAN OF HONOR

A Screen version of Henry Kitchell Webster's popular novel.

HAROLD LOCKWOOD, our friend and the friend of the millions in AMERICA will live for future generations through the magic of the screen.
As a tribute to him we have given what we believe to be his greatest picture for the final presentation in the great LOCKWOOD series of productions.
The character of DAVID SMITH which he portrays is typical of his own splendid battle to-ward success. It is clean as he was clean, manly as he was manly, romantic and lovable as he was, and living on, is lovable.

The company is excellent, comprising Richard Carle, Hattie Fox, Clara Palmer, Martha Craver, George Bogues, Jay Elwood, Milt Dawson, William Wolf, Edward Meridith, and many other musical comedy favorites. A CHANCE TO LIVE

BY ZOE BECKLEY

STORY OR FACTORY?

There was a lot to think about. With the closing of the store on Grand street Annie had two paths before her, one of which she would have to choose immediately.

She lacked only a month now of being 16—a slim, comely girl with tenderly brown hair, big eyes of bluish gray that still held visions, an inquiring tilt and a mobile, wholesome looking mouth. Little sister was now 8, the "baby-boy" 5 and just beginning to be towed to school each morning with shining face and dragging feet. Annie's mother had never got strong since her death and her husband's death she had grown thinner, quieter. She went about her house tasks daily, cooking, incessantly, but on the neckties that still paid seven and ten cents a dozen, according to how much handwork went into them. "Mishkin!"

Even with Aunt Margaret's willing aid, making a living was a tussle. Mrs. Hargan dropped into the habit of recalling in her wistful voice, "When Jim was alive—the days when we had full and plenty: Will they ever come again?"

Annie's old longing to be "in an office," and not a store or factory, leaped up with new vigor. But there was no time to look about for a place where an inexperienced girl could begin. Even if she found it, the wage would be less than she could earn as a salesperson. No. She must take what offered.

She could get a job in a Twenty-third street department store in the city, on a salary of $4.50 a week to start. The year she would get $5. Then $6. If she proved capable and of pleasing personality and offered no department head or floorwalker, there would be eight, possibly ten, dollars in the weekly envelope when Annie was, say, 19. Annie could earn from two to five dollars a week more during that time by following Yetta Kaplin's advice. But the difference was not in mere dollars. It was the difference between two worlds.

In the department store you wore nice clothes and saw life.

In the factory you wore any old thing and became a machine.

Was the four dollars worth it? That night Annie's mother unwittingly decided the matter for her. She fell ill. Annie, sleepless, anyhow, shuttling the question back and forth in her mind—"Store or factory? Store or factory?"—heard her mother call, "If the pain in my back and chest—so much worse!" she explained weakly.

Annie sent her small sister round the corner for Dr. Kelley and got some plaster and hot cloths ready. It was nothing dreadful, the old doctor said. The cold had settled deeply, that was all. She needed care and good food and oughtn't to sit so much bent over her sewing.

Next day Annie got a neighbor to stay with Mrs. Hargan while she sought out Yetta Kaplin's factory. For it must be a factory, not store. This was no time to wear nice clothes and watch ladies who spend money on beautiful things. This was a time to earn, not to luxuriate.

To reach this factory, Annie passed through Twenty-third street. There was the store, its windows flowering with silks and velvets, ribbons, laces, hats. Carriages were ranged in front. And one or two of those miraculously sleek cars were just beginning to fly about the city streets without any visible motor power. "Horseless carriages" people dubbed them. And always they were occupied by beings of super-magnificence, richer, more handsome, dressed even than carriage folks.

THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES.

(Great Inventions series.)

He was actually afraid to go home, was Glub, the Cave man. Although he had been hunting the whole day, not a sign of anything living was to be seen. Nothing but a huge sloth-like creature in her claws and two in her beak.

Bla, his wife, he knew would be hungry, and when Bla was hungry, she saw oceans of red. What's more and worse, Bla had a left-arm swing to her club that even Iron Mug, the toughest guy on the coast, respected. Shakingly, Glub remembered the time Bla had threatened to roast him over a slow fire, if he didn't provide a decent table for her and little Jimber-Jaw.

So Glub, trembling like an oak tree in a cyclone, stole near their cave. Bla was sitting beside the sea washing their gladiators' skin griddles, but she saw Glub first.

"Come over here, grubworm!" she howled, showing a mug that a hill-billy would have been ashamed to look at. "You come over here and wash these duds for me while I cook the dinner."

"All right, Bla. Where's the little—"

"Gosh poor wailer! What did you bring home to cook?" she demanded. Poor Glub looked for a nice, deep pool in the ocean. There was none. Even a grubworm will turn, will show his gals, Glub, and he picked up his club.

"Oh, you will, will you?" cried Bla, who picked up her too, and raised it for its mighty swing.

"Aw, er-haw!" laughed Glub, sickly. "Can't you take a joke, Bla? I just picked this up to roll the water out of the clothes. Like this, see?" And Glub laid the skins down on a rock and rolled the water out just like a rolling-pin rolls out dough.

"Great!" cried Bla, admiringly, and she tapped Glub on the shoulder.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: 1) My hair is black and very oily. I have a loose white dandruff and my hair is very thin. Can you give me a tonic that will aid the growth of my hair and remove the oil without bleaching it?

(2) Also, I am a grass-widow. Is it proper for me to wear my engagement ring? If so, on which hand should I wear it?

(3) The following dandruff remedy for dark-haired people has given satisfaction to many: To an ounce of sulphur add a quart of soft water and during intervals of several days agitate the mixture repeatedly. After the sulphur has settled to the bottom of the receptacle use the clear liquid. Saturate the head with it every morning and in a few weeks every trace of the dandruff will have disappeared. The hair will become soft and glossy, and there will be no return of the old trouble. When the dandruff is gone the growth of the hair will increase.

For the oily condition, there is little you can do except to wash the hair when it needs it.

(2) It is all right to wear the ring on your right hand.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman with grown children. I have a farm of 200 acres that came to my husband and I have never been congenial. He is what would be termed a sport. I have always worked hard and have a hard time to keep the farm that was left me. Of course he overdoes the farm and uses all that he makes. He gives me no share at all.

I am supposed to make enough out of the butter and eggs to keep up the table and other expenses. That would be all right if he were good to me, but he has always been insanely jealous and without cause I never go anywhere unless he goes with me, and have never given him any reason to doubt me in any way.

My health is not good and I am working too hard. I never have any money to get medicine and he thinks there is nothing the matter with me. But I am simply a nervous wreck.

There is an orphan boy, a friend of the 12 years old, has been with us for a long time. He has a home in my home. He left here last winter. Now he has written to me and offered me a home with him. He has always called me "mother" and said he would take care of me in my old age. He is as near to me as one of my own sons.

Please tell me what is best.

DISCOURAGED.

I do not consider it best for you to be imposed upon any longer. Tell your husband that you must have more money or you will get rid of the farm and leave. You could rent it to some one or sell it. This would give you the money to use for yourself. When your father provided for you in his will he did not intend that you should suffer while your husband reaped the benefits of the farm.

Unless your husband gives you what you need put the arm in the hands of some one else, or sell it, and go to the orphan boy who wants you in his home.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls 18 and 20 years old. We are in love with two soldier boys overseas. They have asked us to marry them. They will be home shortly. We have met two other soldier boys from camp. They have also asked us to marry them. What shall we do, wait for the boys overseas or marry the two from camp?

I. G. G. AND M. A. H.

Neither of you are in love or you would not be in doubt. Do not marry until you are older and know what true love means.

TESTED RECIPES.

Steak Cakes—One pound ground round steak, two cups rice, which is hot and steamed; eight to twelve good clean cabbage leaves, outer ones removed; season as desired, with salt and pepper. Two tablespoons drippings or butter. Select a good, small cut of steak with some nice creamy colored suet. Grind it, season, roll into a snow. With it grind four stalks of celery or two green onions, or both are good, as desired. Mix all ingredients with rice. Form into balls. Wrap with two or three cabbage leaves, season slightly. Tie with string to hold shape. Place in a greased pan and add one-half cup of boiling water, a little at a time, until the water is absorbed. Bake in a moderate oven 26 to 30 minutes, as desired.

Combination Vegetable Salad—One cup watercress, five green onions, salt, one tomato, sliced; one-half cup chicken, sliced; let stand in chili rice water 30 to 40 minutes; ten small radishes, leaf or head lettuce. Chill and thoroughly cleanse all ingredients. Arrange lettuce on a plate. Arrange chicken, tomato, cucumber, daintily among the leaves. Cut back radishes. Hide one or two in lettuce. Lay one or two onions at side of each salad plate. Serve with French dressing. Dash of paprika.

Tomato Soup—One pint can tomatoes, two teaspoons sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, tiny pinch soda. Boil 10 minutes. Add one-half cup cold water, one or two-half cups boiling water, one-half cup milk, hot; two green onions, sliced as fine as possible; two stalks of inner celery; one large outer, sliced fine as possible; three to five tablespoons, as desired, rice, steamed; steam tomatoes, add boiling water, sugar, drippings, onion, celery, rice. Simmer 15 minutes. Thicken with cornstarch. Sprinkle in soda. Cool slightly; add milk or half and half to very good and makes soup more creamy. Remove, season, salt, pepper. Serve with croutons.

YOUR GARDEN PRODUCTS

Vegetables just of the garden taste best when simply cooked—steamed, boiled or baked—and served with a little salt, butter, milk or cream. Often a heavily seasoned sauce covers up the more desirable vegetable flavor.

Overcooking of vegetables impairs their flavor. Very delicate flavors are destroyed, while vegetables with strong flavors, such as cabbage or onions, become disagreeably strong if cooked too long. Overcooking also destroys the attractive color of some vegetables.

Famo Destroys Dandruff Bacilli

Science has perfected a wonder-preparation that stops Seborrhea (the medical term for dandruff) by killing the dandruff microbe. Its name is FAMO and it is a product of one of the famous pharmaceutical houses of Detroit.

The ingredients have never been used on the scalp before but they are well known to physicians.

As fast as nature grows new hair the Seborrhea germ kills it off. Unless you destroy the germ with FAMO, the new hair will grow weaker and weaker and baldness finally will result.

FAMO destroys the dandruff bacilli and makes new, luxuriant hair grow.

FAMO actually retards grayness. It contains no alcohol. It stops all itching of the scalp.

FAMO should be used daily by every member of the family, even by those who have no dandruff. It keeps the hair healthy and beautiful and prevents seborrhea.

FAMO is sold at all toilet goods counters, also applied at the better barber shops. It comes in two sizes—a small size at 35 cents and an extra large bottle for $1.

Seborrhea is a condition that for a morbidly increased flow from the sebaceous glands of the scalp. The seborrheal secretion forms in scales or flakes and is commonly known as dandruff.

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO GOD

By
MARY ROBERTS RICHART
Author of "The Man in Lower Ten," etc.

(Copyright—Mary Roberts Richart)
"It is not a trap." Her voice was dead. "I opposed this plan from the start. That is the reason one of the men—of my friends—suspected that I—"

"Go on. What did he suspect?"
"That I—but that doesn't matter. He burned the parish house and planned all this. Tonight he meant to get the money from you, and I was desperate. I could think of no other way."

Ward's faith in her was slow to die. He took a step toward her, his hands out, then dropped them at his sides.

"Then—the night the parish house burned, when I came down in the dawn and found you sitting there—he clenched his hands—"all the time you knew. You knew! And I had thought—"

He went to the table and, opening the box, slipped the notes and money it contained into his pocket. Then he buttoned his coat about him. Elinor watched him steadily.

"You are going back down the hill?"
"I am going home." He did not even look at her.

"If you would only go some place else," she said pitifully. "To the club or to Mrs. Bryant's. Please believe me. Whatever I am, and I have told you the worst, I am trying to think of you tonight, not of myself."

"I am going back to my house," said the assistant rector of Saint Jude's. He got up as far as the door on to the terrace, and there he turned. It was as if he dared not look at her, as if he meant to carry away with him some tender memory than of this white-lipped, guilty woman before him.

"If I seem hard," he said unsteadily, "it is because I am suffering. You are quite sure, of course. I shall not go to the police." Had he cared less, he would have been more merciful.

Old Henriette watched his figure as he went down the garden steps and into the road.

"Strange things in this house!" she murmured, shaking her head. "Frenzies coming and going at all hours, and Elinor in a church this morning. Strange things, Henry Kingston, since you went away."

She shuffled along the terrace and into the house, her thin black shawl drawn about her shoulders. In the library Elinor lay face down on the floor. Old Henriette bent over her. "My lamb, my pet," she soothed her. "He's a fine man, but there are many others. And when one is young and lovely—"

Since Elinor made no response but

The Greatest Medical Authorities in the World have made public statements in which they endorse the value of such ingredients as are contained in Father John's Medicine.

These great physicians say in substance, that these ingredients "are beneficial notably in wasting diseases and those maladies which are connected with or have their origin in debilitating and wasting diseases and in colds."

To detail here the statements of these various authorities would require too much space, but if you desire to see the statements in more complete form, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., and we will be glad to give the names of the authorities quoted, with brief excerpts from their public statements. Father John's Medicine is a pure and wholesome body builder, contains no alcohol or dangerous drugs.

PETEY DINK—CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME. YOU KNOW

only moaned; old Henriette rose from her knees and shuffled out of the room, but cautiously, as she passed, she took from a table drawer old Elinor's revolver and carried it out under her shawl.

She was very wise, was wrinkled Henriette, and she knew the Kingston blood.

Ward came down the road rapidly. There was a faint moon. One part of his mind had ceased to work; his higher faculties were dormant with misgiving, with the anesthesia that comes for a time after great grief or shock. Physically he was entirely alert; his keen eyes searched each clump of shrubbery before he reached it. Not that he feared attack for himself; his code of life was bitter to his taste that night, but he carried a trust in his pockets, that he would deliver.

Huff was waiting at the foot of the Kingston place, crouched behind a wall. If the boy had been jealous before, he was maddened now. Ward had been with Elinor. Huff, coming up the hill had heard his short good-night to Henriette in the garden, had heard him come down the hill. There were only two explanations. Either the man was in love with her and had gone up that night of his own volition, or Elinor had sent for him. One was as bad as the other.

Ward did not have a chance. As he came abreast of the wall, the boy fired and he pitched forward on his face. With the re-echoing of the shot among the hills, Huff's madness died away. Murder was not his game; violent and sudden death perhaps, but never, before a shot from behind. Had the wealth of a city been in Ward's pockets, he could not have touched it.

He thrust his revolver into his pocket, and breaking away through the shrubbery commenced a swift but noiseless ascent of the hill.

The assistant rector of Saint Jude's lay on his face in the road, with the morning offering of his congregation safe in his pockets.

CHAPTER XI.

The chief sent for Boroday early the next morning.

"You've turned the trick all right," he said, grimly smiling.

Boroday, as immaculate as ever, settled his tie.

"Yes?"

"Sit down," said the chief. "Now that you know you're going, I suppose you're not in any particular hurry." Boroday ran his hand over his silky beard.

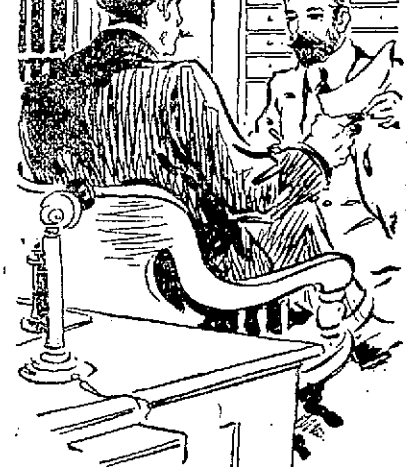

"There like to get to a barber."

"I should be no great hurry, now," said the chief, when Boroday was comfortably settled and smoking one of his eternal Russian cigarettes. "I wish you would tell me why you disposed of that pearl the way you did. It wasn't quite up to our agreement, you know. It was to be given to me and I was to return it. Instead of that I had to make a wild-goose chase out into the country."

"All," said Boroday, "into the country."

The chief, who was accustomed to reading faces, watched Boroday closely. But if there was a tightening about the Russian's eyes, it was very faint.

"You know blamed well," said the chief pitifully. "Just where I had to go to get that thing. And you know blamed well also that on Sunday afternoon I always play poker. It was—well, inconsiderate, to say the least."

Boroday smiled.

"I am exceedingly sorry that you were put to any trouble about it," he said. "But as you may understand, I have not yet seen my—friends, and of course—"

He shrugged his shoulders. The chief was skeptical of his ignorance, nevertheless. He happened what he chose to consider Boroday's whim. First he gave him the note which he had received by special delivery the day before. Quick as he was, the Russian could not quite conceal his astonishment.

"In the alms box!" said the chief. "Somebody with a sense of humor had charge of this little affair. Bryant is senior warden, it seems, in this church. It was clever."

Boroday passed the letter back to him.

"I shall tell my conferees. It is quite original."

The chief was smoking a large cigar. Unlike the police chief of fiction and the drama, he did not speak around the cigar, but carefully removed it, not out of respect to his visitor, but out of deference to a good cigar. Now he leaned toward Boroday.

"Either," he said slowly, "it was clever, or it was necessary."

But the Russian had himself well in hand. He only smiled.

"It has occurred to me," the chief went on, "that that little town has been pretty busy lately. There was that matter of the country club, you know, and last Thursday night the parish house burned down."

"Yes," said Boroday, politely.

"And now something else has happened and—" Suddenly the chief beat his desk with his fist—"I am pretty sick of it."

Under perfect control as he was at critical moments, the Russian's hands had a way of twitching. So now he flicked the ash from his cigarette and was politely interested.

"What happened last night?" he inquired.

"I think you know. If you don't, I'll tell you. Yesterday morning, a tremendous collection was taken up at the church of Saint Jude's to build a new parish house in place of the one that burned down. The rector has been away; the assistant rector took charge of the money."

"I see."

"Of course you see. What I would like to know is why you fellows—"

Boroday spread out his hands in his foreign way.

"I fear you give me great credit. I do not deserve it."

"Why you fellows," the chief went on resolutely, "waited to do this job until the rector, who is old and infirm, had gone away and left a husky young assistant in his place. And that isn't all I want to know."

"In any way that I can assist you—"

"What the devil do you mean?" yelled the chief, "by shooting a man down and then going away and leaving the money in his pockets? It's—"

"It's crude—it's wasteful!"

The Russian's fingers twitched in spite of him. The chief saw it and smiled under his heavy mustache.

"Do you mean that somebody shot this—or—assistant you speak of? That is rather sad. Was there—much money?"

"Seventy-eight thousand dollars," said the chief, and put his cigar back in his mouth. "There is a story behind it, Boroday, and it's that story I am going to get. I'm warning you because you've played pretty square with me. I needed that pearl in my business."

Boroday rose.

"All right, chief," he said. "I am sorry about young Ward. I hope he wasn't killed."

NORTH DAKOTA HAS WOMAN SCHOOL HEAD

Miss Minnie J. Nielson.

Miss Minnie J. Nielson was elected superintendent of the schools of North Dakota last November. During the recent session of the state legislature, however, the faction opposed to Miss Nielson was in control, and a law has been passed which creates a board of three members which would take over many of the duties that are now centered in the office of the elected superintendent. Miss Nielson's friends are fighting this step and the result is that she has become the center of an interesting fight.

Dinner Stories

A man wearing a very big hat and walking with a great deal of swagger, entered a barbershop which had but one empty chair. Hanging his hat on a peg, and then drawing a revolver, he turned to the idle man and said: "I want a shave—just a common shave. I want no talk. Don't ask me

If I want a hair cut or a shampoo. Don't speak of the weather or politics. If you speak to me I'll shoot."

He took the chair, held the revolver across his legs and was shaved with promptness and dispatch. When he got up he returned to the shooter to his hat, put on his hat, and after a broad chuckle he said to the cashier:

"That's the way to keep a barber quiet. He don't utter a word."

"No, sir, he couldn't."

"Couldn't?"

"No, sir, he's deaf and dumb."

Sometimes a truly innocent remark is so unfortunate as to incur instant resentment and positively invite refusal. Take the case of the diminutive man of kindly appearance, who was very worried and spent two months in a hospital. He went "over the top" three times. His stay will be indefinite. Will Honeysett is helping do the chores for Pearl Dean, the latter having considerable trouble with one of his arms.

Stowe Richards left on the Wednesday evening train for Barron. He will spend a few days visiting relatives and friends before proceeding to the home of his parents in Idaho.

Mr. and Mrs. Herryman are spending today out of town.

Mrs. A. J. Snyder, Ohio, is expected soon. She will remain for an indefinite period at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Tracy.

William Dexter, Triumph, Mich., is visiting at the home of his aunt, Mrs. McCallin. Mr. Dexter saw two years of active service in France, was severely wounded and spent two months in a hospital. He went "over the top" three times. His stay will be indefinite. Will Honeysett is helping do the chores for Pearl Dean, the latter having considerable trouble with one of his arms.

GREAT OLD REMEDY FOR SKIN DISEASES

S. S. S. Clears Skin of Eruptions—Drives Poison From the System.

Get it fixed in your mind that skin eruptions, Scrofula, Eczema, burning, itching skin, and all skin diseases are due entirely to impure and infected blood. If the trouble was on the outside of the skin, by simply washing and keeping it clean you could obtain relief—not even ointments, lotions, and salves would be necessary. Agree with us in this belief, and your trouble can be relieved—you can be entirely restored to health. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable treatment that you can secure from your own druggist—it is a blood tonic that will purify your blood and cause a most decided abatement of your trouble, and finally make you entirely well. Fifty years ago S. S. S. was discovered and given to suffering mankind. During this period it has proven its remarkable curative properties as a blood purifier and tonic, and has relieved thousands of cases of disease caused by poor or impure blood, and chronic or inherited blood diseases. You can be relieved, but you must take S. S. S. Take it if only pimples appear, for they denote bad blood, and may be followed by the sufferings from torturing skin eruptions. Therefore be sure. Don't take chances, don't use lotions. If yours is a special case, write for expert medical advice. Address Medical Director, 258 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Fred Snyder and wife accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. George Patzinger, Janesville, left this morning for an automobile trip through the north, and will visit relatives in and around Richmond. They contemplate returning the middle of next week.

The Royal Neighbors will meet next Tuesday evening. Several new members are to be taken in at that time. Frank Cosseter and wife were recent callers in town, coming from Orfordville.

Charles Whitmore has been quite ill during the past week with the prevailing epidemic, and the past few days has suffered intensely from a gathering in the head.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

HENRY M. ROBINSON. Henry M. Robinson has been appointed a member of the U. S. shipping board by President Wilson. He is in charge, in Paris, of our American marine inflators and substitutes Edward N. Hurley on the international labor board. He is in charge of the furnishing of the ships for re-victualling Europe, providing the transportation for the return of troops; in charge of the communalization and the building up of our cable service and is giving much time to the study of international trade, marine insurance and banking facilities which would be of benefit to the American merchant marine.

He was born at Ravenna, Ohio, 55 years ago and is a graduate of Cornell. An engineer and executive of wide and varied experience, he has organized and managed a number of mining, electric light and power and other engineering enterprises, and has had experience in shipbuilding.

During the first years of the war he served in the counsel of national defense, and last June became assistant to the chairman of the shipping board. Upon the signing of the armistice he assembled the shipping data necessary for the use of the peace conference, and in January sailed for Europe to serve as special shipping commissioner. Upon the return of Hurley to the U. S. Mr. Robinson remained abroad in charge of the shipping board organization. He was the American shipping representative at the Spa conference and presided over the international conference at Brussels when German ships held up in German ports were released to the allies.

Optimistic Thought. It is more laborious to conquer one's self than an enemy.

THE WISHING PLANE

The stars were twinkling away at a great rate when Jack and Jane, Dr. Cheer, Ladydear, Captain Brave, Captain Bold and Rook started up above the clouds in the airplane.

And when they had sailed high enough to get among the clouds it seemed as though they could see millions and millions more stars.

Jack's first question was, "What is the difference between a planet and a star?"

"Well, about the only way I can tell you, Jack," said Dr. Cheer, "is that the stars are just like cousins of the planets and millions of miles farther away than the planets.

The Doctor pointed out Mars, which it can easily find because it is such a red star. Then he told them that the pale yellow stars that seem to be near Mars, is Saturn, and hundreds of other interesting things.

"They could hardly believe it when he told them that if they could fly to Mars in the airplane that our earth would look just like Venus, or some other bright and shining planet does to us.

All this time the children had been looking at the different stars through what Dr. Cheer called a telescope. It made everything they looked at much bigger and plainer. Dr. Cheer knew that the children would be more than interested if he told them how there happened to be such a thing as a telescope. And I know you could never guess that some little children just like yourself really invented it. But they did.

Scientists say that some little tots were playing with the glasses taken out of the spectacles like Grandpa and Grandma wear. They noticed that they could see things awfully far away much better when they held two of the glasses in front of one eye. A very learned man of that time heard about it and used the idea to make the telescope.

The air plane flew around the heavens until Ladydear said that it was time for the little folks to be in bed, and then they sailed down to the home on the island.

Jack and Jane would have liked to have asked Dr. Cheer what brought star it was shining in their window when they went to bed, but they were sound asleep about a minute after they saw the star and the next morning the sun woke them up.

The next day was full of more adventures for Jack and Jane. With Dr. Cheer and the others they flew over to the other side of the island, and landed right plump in the middle of a town that the natives in the island had built.

Such funny brown folks. Neither Jack nor Jane had ever seen anyone like them before. Even Captain Brave and Ladydear had never seen them.

The children thought they were the strangest folks they had ever seen. Dr. Cheer told them, though, that all of the islands in this southern part of the world, it was terribly hot most of the time, were populated by brown people and that these brown folk had never seen any white people until he came to the island to build his home.

Jack had heard a lot about the fierce savages on these islands and so had Jane, and they were a bit timid until they saw how friendly Dr. Cheer was with the natives.

I will tell you tomorrow all about the children's visit in the village.

Charles Kramar.

Charles Kramar, one of the two delegates from Czechoslovakia to the peace conference, has devoted his public life to the cause of Bohemian liberty. He was long a leader of the young Czech party in the Austrian Reichsrat. He was arrested early in the war and condemned to death by an Austrian court. He was later reprieved and liberated. He is now prime minister of the Czechoslovak government. The other Czechoslovak delegates to the peace table is Edouard Benes.

Men of the 32nd Division, "Les Terribles"

Welcome Home!

IT is with deep appreciation of your services to our country that we say "Welcome Home." Your splendid courage and work so well done have made this a glorious epoch in the history of America and of the world.

THIS institution has been privileged during its history to help welcome home veterans from three wars, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and the Great World War, in each of which Janesville's sons played a valorous part. It remained for you to add lustre to the history of our city and nobly did you finish the task with which you were entrusted.

Janesville, The State and All The Nation thrills at the names of the battles you went through. You won the fight as we knew you would. Your heroism, your valor rings throughout the world.

Mere words cannot express our distinct admiration for you. What you did is forever engraved deep in the hearts of us all. We welcome you, each and every man—heroes all.

On Janesville's Service Flag some of the stars have turned to Gold.

We hold sacred the memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice and our welcome is touched deeply with sadness because those for whom the Gold Star gleams in its field of white, will never return to our midst. They "went West" to make the world safe for democracy and we can never forget them.
